

Cambridge IGCSE

Cambridge IGCSE is an international qualification for students aged 14 – 16 years.

Cambridge IGCSE is a high-profile qualification with an excellent reputation:

- It is recognised by universities and employers around the world
- It is equivalent in standard to the UK GCSE examinations

Who can take Cambridge IGCSE?

Most students take Cambridge IGCSE at age 16, but it can be delivered in many ways, to all ages.

Cambridge IGCSE can be studied alongside other subjects in the national curriculum.

What are the benefits?

- Cambridge IGCSE is an internationally recognised qualification
- It is studied and assessed in the English Language
- Cambridge IGCSE is available in 70 subjects
- Cambridge IGCSE prepares students for further study in English

What options are available?

Students can choose from 70 subjects in the following groups:

- Languages
- Mathematics
- Sciences
- Humanities and Social Sciences
- Business, Creative, Technical and Vocational

What are Cambridge IGCSE courses and examinations like?

IGCSE courses can include:

- Coursework
- Practical exercises
- Oral or listening tests for languages
- Projects

All IGCSEs have written examinations at the end of the course. The highest grade awarded is an A*.

About University of Cambridge International Examinations (CIE)

CIE examinations are taken in over 150 different countries.

CIE is the world's largest provider of international qualifications for 14 – 19 year olds.

CIE is part of the Cambridge Assessment Group and a department of the University of Cambridge.